THE RESOLUTION REFERRED

House Considers V. P. 1. Appropriation Bill-City Extension Bill Passed.

terday was the introduction and discussion by Mr. Griffith (Republican), of Russell, of a resolution, calling upon the Autorne General in his discretion take legal tseps against the auditor of public accounts and his sureties to recover the amount embezzled by Joseph II. Shepherd, who is now serving a term in the State prison for that crime, hav-ing been for years a clerk in the au-ditor's office.

omoney when there was a for its recovery. In an ter on he said that he had informed that Shepherd, stealing from the State, was paying pre-miums on a life insurance policy of &. (0), carried in the name of his wife, who has since died. The prisoner is, according to Mr. Griffith's information, the beneficiary, and the money will be paid to him when he is released. Mr. Griffith's idea is that a proper suit will at least recover this much, and he thinks the auditor and his sureties should be sued for the rest. He says he has been informed by a State official that the embezzlement of Shepherd amounted to about $50,000, and that it extended over a period of six or seven years.

The House passed a resolution recently calling upon the auditor to state the extent of the loss to the State from this source.

The Senate held two sessions and disposed of a number of minor measures. It also adopted the Keezell resolution, expressing the sense of the Senate that a strigle book list would be hest for the public schools, and urging the Board of Education to adopt such a list. The majority was nearly two-thirds in favor of the resolution. of the resolution.

The Virginia Polytechnic Institute bill.

of the resolution.

The Virginia Polytechnic Institute bill, carrying a large appropriation, was taken up as a special order, and the discussion begun. Mr. Phiegar, the patron of the bill, opened the debate for it and spoke until 2 P. M., when the bill was laid aside until to-day. The passage of the bill in some form is assured, the only question being as to the amount to be appropriated. Two amendments were offered yesterday, one to make the sun $15,000; another to make it $190,000, and a third to appropriate $195,000, whereas the original bill asked for $20,000, Mr. Philegar will conclude his argument for the bill to-day, and others will speak.

The Senate.

The session of the Senate yesterday was a double-header, consuming in all nearly five hours. The greater part of the earlier session, which continued from noon until 2 P. M., was consumed in discussion of the bill proposing to appropriate $155,000 for the enlargement and Improvement of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and when the hour of vacating the chair arrived, Mr. Phlegar, patron of the bill, had not concluded his argument bill, had not concluded his argument for it. He will resume and conclude his argument to-day.

There was a large attendance of sena-tors when the body was called to order at noon.

Almost as soon as the body had gotten down to work Mr. Ople, of Augusta, offered a resolution providing that when the hour of 2 o'clock arrive the chair be vacated until 2 P. M. and resumed at 3:30 P. M. to consider the large calendar, which has accumulated in a few days during the debate on the Anderson bill.

Mr. McIlwahne offered an amendment the resolution providing that only unto the resolution providing that only un-contested bills be considered at the af-ternoon session. The amendment was ternoon session. The amendment was adopted, and the resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. Sadler, of Powhatan, was the first speaker. He opposed the resolution, con-tending that the State Board of Educa-tion was intrusted with this matter and was competent to do so. He thought the Senate should not interfere in any way with the board.

Mr. Keczeli, of Rockingham, patron of the joint resolution, closed the debate in support of it in an earnest plea for its passage. He is one of the oldest, if not the oldest senator in point of service, and has always been a staunch friend of the public schools and an advocate of their improvement. His position as Chairman public schools and an account of the Committee for Public Institutions and Education and his long connection with that committee added weight to his words. He contended that the adoption of the single book list meant a saving to the single book list meant a saving to words. He contended that the adoption of the single book list meant a saving to the patiens of the public school of a quarter of a million deliars annually, and would protect the local boards from the importunities and attentions of the assiduous agents of the school book publishing licenses. He stated that the resolution might not have any effect with the State Board of Education, but that it would at least have the effect of expressing the sense of the General Assembly. He urged the Senate to pass the resolution. Air. Phiegar called the pending question and the resolution was adopted by a vote of 20 to 13, as follows:

of 20 to 13, as follows: Ayes-Messrs, Anderson, Bryant, Byars Ayes—Messrs, Anderson, Brynnt, Byars, Campbell, Chapman, Ford, Garrett, A. C. Harman, Hobbs, Hutcheson, Keczell, Machen, Opie, Phlegar, Rison, Shands, Tavenner, Walker and Wickham—20.

Sadler. Sears, Shockelford, St. Chair, Turner and Wallace—13.

The passage of a joint resolution by the House was communicated to the Senate therein asked. The bill is in relation to asking the Virginia delegation in Congress to support the Gaines bill permitting producers of tobacco to manufacture the same without coming under the internal revenue laws. The Senate referred the resolution.

The second special order, the Phlegar bill, appropriating $200,000 For the calargement and improvement of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Mondgomery county, reported from the Committee for Finance with an amendment, making the appropriation $165, e00, was laid before the Senate.

Mr. Keezell, of Rockingham, proposed an amendment making the appropriation $115,000, explaining that though the school was deserving, he could not see his way clear in the present condition of the Sadler, Sears, Shackelfe Turner and Wallace—13.

$115,000, explaining that though the school was deserving, he could not see his way clear in the present condition of the State's finances and the demand upon them to appropriate more. He commended the school in the highest terms, but stated that he thought the sum of $115,000 would do all that was immediately needful.

Mr. Opic, of Augusta, proposed a still further cut, offering an amendment making the sum $100,000 even. He, too, praised the school, which he regarded as the best institution in the State and one which was doing a great work and doing it well. He proposed the amendment, however, out df regard for the fact that there were many other calls upon the State's finances. needful, ment, however, out of regard for the fact that there were many other calls upon the State's finances.

Mr. Phlegar then took the floor in advocacy of the bill and the sum originally asked, $20,00. He spoke until the chair was vacated at 2 P. M., and had not then concluded, but will resume at 12:20 to-day, when the bill is again laid before the Senate for consideration. Mr. Phlegar is thoroughly familiar with the school and its work and its needs. He spoke at some length of the standard of instruction there and of the high rank taken by graduates of the school in competition with those of other institutions of the kind, eiting a long list of those who are now holding responsible positions all over the world. He described the crowded condition of the school and the imperative need of onlarged accommodations in the matter of dining-room, barracks and other buildings. The present buildings were outgrown long ago, and under existing conditions he showed that it was not possible to give the students the some instruction and the degree of benefit that would be possible with better equipment and enlarged buildings.

Mr. Opic was disposed to question Mr. Phlegar as to the number of students from other States, whose presence there crowded out so many Virginia boys, but of the marriage, amount of the marriage, amount of the ficense, the other an extended one, the docket having nearly forty cases on it. Mr. Phlegar showed that the mimber was small, and that even with all of them subtracted, the present accommodations would be inadequate to provide for the Virginia students, Besides many of these from other States were son of Virginians who had come back to the old Commonwealth to be educated at this famous school, the reputation of which was growing so rapidly.

Mr. Phlegar sindy a close and powerful argument for the appropriation, showing therough familiarity with the work of the school in overy detail, with the emipment and its condition and capacity and with the records of the young men who have gone out from the school.

The hour of two having arrived, he discontinued his speech for the time and the chair was vacated until 230 P. M.

A large number of bills were reported from various committees, but most of them were local in their nature.

Mr. Kelley shortly called Mr. Hunley, of Mathews, to the chair, and the latter presided during much of the session.

Mr. Griffith, following up his resolution of several days ago, in relation to the shortage of Joseph H. Shepherd in the auditor's office, offered one calling upon the attorney-general to institute legal proceedings against the Auditor of Public Accounts and his sureties to receive the money thus lost to the State.

He declared that he had information which led him to believe that the money could be recovered, and he asserted that the auditor was, and should be, held responsible for the postoffice scandals now being the limited States should be held responsible for the postoffice scandals now being investigated, and the member from Russell declared that the cases were not parallel.
